The paintings of Pellegrino (1905-1984), who used to live as a farmer in a remote village in the Italian Appenine mountains, deals with animals, human beings, plants and figures, which he combines to a little symbolic cosmos, similar to the oldest art of petrograph and cave painting. The exhibition shows Vignalis' art as well as works of artists from the House of Kannen, who find their way towards the nature of life, to everything alive, a process which eventually ends up for each of them in developing their own mental pictures.
